7 WESTERN DISTRICT OF WASHINGTON
8 AT SEATTLE

9 EVAN CARNAHAN,

10 Plaintiff,

11 v.

12 ALPHA EPSILON PI FRATERNITY, INC.
13 and DAVID LEON,

14 Defendants.
15

Case No. 2:17-CV-00086-RSL

ORDER ON MOTION TO DETERMINE
APPLICABILITY OF WORK-
PRODUCT PROTECTION

16 This matter comes before the Court on plaintiff Evan Carnahan's motion to determine the 17 applicability of the work-product protection doctrine to a letter disclosed and a statement made 18 by defendant David Leon, pursuant to Federal Rule of Civil Procedure 26(b)(5)(B) ("the 19 Motion"). Dkt. #45.

20 Plaintiff claims that on January 26, 2014, Mr. Leon accidentally struck him on the head 21 with an airsoft gun. He claims that both of them were intoxicated at the time, and that the 22 incident took place in the Alpha Epsilon Pi ("AEP") fraternity house at the University of 23 Washington. See Dkt. #1 at 3-4. He filed this action against AEP and Mr. Leon almost three 24 years later, on January 23, 2017.

25 Mr. Leon tendered Mr. Carnahan's lawsuit to his parents' homeowner's insurance
26 company, CSAA. See Dkt. #45-2. As part of his Initial Disclosures, Mr. Leon produced a copy 27
28

1 of CSAA's insurance policy and declarations page. See Dkt. #50 at 2. On May 23, 2017,¹ he 2 gave a recorded statement concerning the incident ("the Statement") to CSAA. See id. On the 3 same day, CSAA's coverage counsel sent a "reservation of rights" letter to Mr. Leon,
4 reproducing portions of his recorded Statement ("the Letter").² See Dkt. #45 at 4-5. Mr. Leon
5 then produced the Letter as a supplement to his Initial Disclosures on January 3, 2018. See Fed.
6 R. Civ. P. 26(e); see Dkt. #45-2.

7 In emails dated January 16, 2018 and January 18, 2018, plaintiff's counsel requested that 8 Mr. Leon's recorded Statement to CSAA be produced. See Dkt. #45-3; see Dkt. #47. Defense
9 counsel responded on January 19, 2018 with a redacted version of the Letter that excluded
10 references to Mr. Leon's recorded Statement. Defense counsel said that an unredacted version of 11 the Letter had been inadvertently produced, and that the quoted portions of Mr. Leon's 12 Statement to CSAA were protected under the work-product doctrine. See Dkt. #45-4. He 13 requested plaintiff's counsel to dispose of the unredacted Letter, in compliance with Federal 14 Rule of Civil Procedure 26(b)(5).³ See id. On January 23, 2018, defense counsel produced a 15 Privilege Log that listed the unredacted Letter. The Log did not indicate the date on which the 16 Statement was taken, or to whom it was made. See Dkt. #45-5. Further correspondence did not 17 resolve the issue. See Dkt. #50-4 to Dkt. #50-9; see also Dkt. #47 at 2. Plaintiff then filed this 18 Motion for a determination that the unredacted Letter and the Statement are discoverable.
19

21 ¹ This Motion was filed on May 18, 2018. See Dkt. #41. Plaintiff's Reply in Support of the 22 Motion was filed on June 7, 2018. See Dkt. #55. At the time, plaintiff was not aware of the exact date of 23 Mr. Leon's recorded Statement to CSAA. See id. at 2-3 ("Leon has not provided: 1) the date the 24 statement was made..."). On June 21, 2018, Mr. Leon responded to plaintiff's Second Discovery
25 Requests. See Dkt. #63-1. The Response to Request For Production No. 1 states, "Mr. Leon provided a 26 statement to his insurance company, CSAA, on 5/23/17. The referenced statement was provided during 27 litigation. It is therefore protected from discovery under Rule 26(b)(3)." The Court therefore finds that 28 the recorded Statement at issue here was provided to CSAA on May 23, 2017.

26 ² CSAA's subsequent rescinding of its reservation of rights is irrelevant. See Dkt. #50-10.

27 ³ According to later communications from plaintiff's counsel, the Letter has been sequestered
28 pending resolution of the issue. See Dkt. #57-1.

1 Plaintiff first argues that the Statement and the unredacted Letter are not entitled to work-
2 product protection. In the alternative, plaintiff asserts that Mr. Leon waived that protection by 3 producing the Letter. In the second alternative, plaintiff argues that he has substantial need of 4 the Statement and the unredacted Letter.

5 The Court finds that Mr. Leon's Statement is not protected by the work-product rule. The 6 Court also finds that Mr. Leon did waive any potential work-product protection, and that 7 plaintiff has demonstrated substantial need of the Statement.

8 1. The Letter and Statement Are Not Privileged as Work Product

9
10 As federal jurisdiction in this case is based on diversity, federal law governs Mr. Leon's
11 assertion of work-product protection. See Lexington Ins. Co. v. Swanson, 240 F.R.D. 662, 666
12 (W.D. Wash. 2007). Under the work-product protection doctrine, a document is exempt from 13 discovery if it is "prepared in anticipation of litigation or for trial," by or for another party or its 14 representative. Fed. R. Civ. P. 26(b)(3). The party claiming the protection bears the burden of 15 proving that the document meets both requirements. See San Diego Gas & Elec. Co. v.
16 Westinghouse Elec. Corp. (In re California Pub. Utilities Comm'n), 892 F.2d 778, 780 (9th Cir.
17 1989); see Heath v. F/V ZOLOTOL, 221 F.R.D. 545, 549 (W.D. Wash. 2004).

18 It is irrelevant whether "litigation was a primary or secondary motive behind the creation 19 of a document." In re Grand Jury Subpoena (Mark Torf/Torf Envtl. Mgmt.), 357 F.3d 900, 908
20 (9th Cir. 2004). Rather, the Court "must consider the totality of the circumstances and determine 21 whether the document was created because of anticipated litigation, and would not have been 22 created in substantially similar form but for the prospect of litigation." United States v. Richey, 23 632 F.3d 559, 567–68 (9th Cir. 2011); accord Westridge Townhomes Owners Assoc. v. Great 24 Am. Assurance Co., No. C16-1011RSM, 2018 WL 993962, at *3 (W.D. Wash. Feb. 21, 2018).
25 By contrast, "[i]t is well established that documents prepared in the ordinary course of business 26 are not protected by the work-product doctrine because they would have been created regardless 27 of the litigation." Heath, 221 F.R.D. at 249-550 (citing to Fed. R. Civ. P. 26(b)(3), Advisory 28

1 Committee Notes (“Materials assembled in the ordinary course of business... are not under the 2 qualified immunity provided by this subsection.”)).

3 In a literal sense, Mr. Leon’s Statement, and the portions of it quoted in the Letter, would 4 not have been created “regardless” of the litigation. Mr. Leon tendered Mr. Carnahan’s lawsuit
5 to CSAA, which then retained the Law Office of Karen D. Marcus “to advise [them] with 6 respect to the insurance coverage issues that have arisen in connection with the incident that 7 gave rise to [the] lawsuit.” See Dkt. #45-2 at 3. His recorded Statement was thus provided to 8 CSAA after the Complaint was filed, and was specifically used in CSAA’s coverage analysis for 9 Mr. Leon’s defense of the lawsuit. It “would not have been created in substantially similar form 10 but for the prospect of litigation.” Richey, 632 F.3d at 568.

11 However, insurance companies in particular “have a duty to investigate, evaluate, and 12 adjust claims made by their insureds... The creation of documents during this process is part of 13 the ordinary course of business of insurance companies, and the fact that litigation is pending or 14 may eventually ensue does not cloak such documents with work-product protection.” HSS 15 Enterprises, LCC v. Amco Ins. Co., No. C06-1485-JPD, 2008 WL 163669, at *4 (W.D. Wash.
16 Jan. 14, 2008) (citing to Heath, 221 F.R.D. at 550). The fact that a suit has been filed does not 17 automatically render protection to all subsequent documentation as “work-product.” Id. Rather, 18 a document “prepared before a final decision was reached on an insured’s claim, and which 19 constitutes part of the factual inquiry into or evaluation of that claim, was prepared in the 20 ordinary and routine course of the insurer’s business of claim determination and is not work
21 product.” Tilden-Coil Constructors, Inc. v. Landmark Am. Ins. Co., No. C09-1574JLR, 2010
22 WL 3789104, at *1 (W.D. Wash. Sept. 23, 2010). As evidenced by the Letter, Mr. Leon’s
23 Statement was recorded before CSAA reached a decision on his tender, and it clearly formed 24 part of its evaluation of that claim. See Dkt. #45-2 at 3 (“In your recorded statement you 25 explained that that [sic] “... we were playing video games... I remember hitting Evan with a like 26 a [sic] airsoft gun...” CSAA understands that you did not mean to hurt Evan.”).

1 Mr. Leon argues in response to the Motion that Tilden-Coil Constructors “involved a first
2 party dispute over an insurer’s decision to deny coverage. ... Of course, in the context of a first 3 party claim, that information would be discoverable. However, this is a third-party case where 4 the insurer’s conduct is irrelevant to Plaintiff’s causes of action.” See Dkt. #49 at 10-11. Mr.
5 Leon also cites to an out-of-circuit case, Smith v. Scottsdale Ins. Co., 40 F. Supp. 3d 704
6 (N.D.W. Va. 2014), aff’d, No. 5:12CV86, 2014 WL 4199207 (N.D.W. Va. Aug. 22, 2014), and 7 aff’d, 621 F. App’x 743 (4th Cir. 2015), for the same proposition. See Dkt. #49 at 10; see Smith,
8 40 F. Supp. 3d at 720 (“Unlike files generated while investigating whether to deny a first-party
9 claim, ... insurance claim files generated in relation to investigating and defending against third-
10 party claims are generally considered work-product ...”). However, in Smith, a “third-party 11 claim” was defined as a “bad faith action ... that is brought against an insurer by a plaintiff who 12 prevailed in a separate action against an insured tortfeasor.” Smith, 40 F. Supp. 3d at 713-14.
13 That is not the issue here. This not a third-party claim.

14 Mr. Leon is, however, correct to point out that CSAA is not a party to this litigation. See 15 Dkt. #49 at 11. In Tilden-Coil and HSS Enterprises, on which plaintiff relies, the insurance
16 company was a party. But this makes the recorded Statement less deserving of protection, not 17 more. The rule is intended to protect “trial preparation materials that reveal an attorney’s 18 strategy, intended lines of proof, evaluation of strengths and weaknesses, and inferences drawn
19 from interviews.” Heath 221 F.R.D. at 549; accord HSS Enterprises, 2008 WL 163669, at *4-6 20 (“Such material, even if generated by the defendant after the complaint was filed, was not 21 prepared in anticipation of litigation if the material only concerned facts and did not involve 22 legal opinions or thoughts about the defendant’s trial strategy and posture.”). Its “primary 23 purpose... is to “prevent exploitation of a party’s efforts in preparing for litigation.”” Holmgren 24 v. State Farm Mut. Auto. Ins. Co., 976 F.2d 573, 576 (9th Cir. 1992) (citing to Admiral Ins. Co.
25 v. United States District Court, 881 F.2d 1486, 1494 (9th Cir.1989)).
26
27
28

1 Mr. Leon's Statement was taken as part of CSAA's determination of its coverage.
2 Beyond a bald assertion, defense counsel provides no evidence to suggest that it was also 3 created to assist Mr. Leon in his defense of the lawsuit. In fact, defense counsel was admittedly
4 unaware of the Statement at the time that it was actually given. See Dkt. #57-2 at 1-2 ("What 5 [Mr. Leon] said to his insurance company after a lawsuit was filed (and without my knowledge 6 or inclusion in that interview, by the way) is plain and simple work product."); see Dkt. #50 at 7 2-3 ("... Defendant Leon provided a recorded statement to CSAA about the alleged incident.
8 Later, CSAA provided a copy of the recorded statement to us to use in formulating our defense
9 strategy for the case."). An attorney need not be involved for a document to be considered work
10 product, but the absence of Mr. Leon's counsel makes it less likely that the Statement was 11 created as part of Mr. Leon's preparation for trial. See Myer v. Nitetrain Coach Co., No. C06-12 804C, 2007 WL 686357, at *1-3 (W.D. Wash. Mar. 2, 2007). Moreover, the Statement was 13 given by Mr. Leon on May 23, 2017, but defense counsel did not receive it until late-December 14 2017. See Dkt. #49 at 3. When asked, they were unable to provide any information about when 15 it was created. See Dkt. #47 at 2 ("I asked [defense counsel] for when the statement was made
16 and to whom so that I could properly assess the claim of work protection. [Defense counsel] said 17 he did not have that information but that it would be provided once he did.").

18 The Statement was not provided for the purpose of preparing for litigation. The fact that 19 it may have been helpful to defense counsel in their preparations does not automatically make it 20 work product. See United States v. Adlman, 134 F.3d 1194, 1202 (2d Cir. 1998), accord Heath, 21 221 F.R.D. at 550. The Statement and the Letter are not protected by the work product privilege.

22 2. Mr. Leon Waived Any Work Product Privilege

24 In the alternative, if Mr. Leon's Statement were found to be privileged as work product, 25 the Court would still find that Mr. Leon had waived this privilege. This was not a voluntary 26
27
28

1 waiver,⁴ but an involuntary one. A disclosure does not operate as a waiver if it is inadvertent, 2 and the holder of the privilege took reasonable steps to prevent the disclosure and rectify the 3 error. See Fed. R. Evid. 502; see Columbia Cmty. Credit Union v. Chicago Title Ins. Co., No.
4 C09-5290RJB, 2009 WL 10688219, at *4 (W.D. Wash. Dec. 22, 2009). Mr. Leon’s disclosure
5 of portions of the Statement in the Letter seems to have been inadvertent. Defense counsel took 6 reasonable steps to rectify the error by notifying plaintiff’s counsel as soon as they became 7 aware of the disclosure. See Dkt. #45-4.

8 However, reasonable steps were not taken to prevent the disclosure of the Statement in 9 the first place. The Letter is only five pages long, and was disclosed by itself as a supplement to 10 Mr. Leon’s Initial Disclosures. See for e.g. Hanson v. Wells Fargo Home Mortg., Inc., No. C13-
11 0939JLR, 2013 WL 5674997, at *6 (W.D. Wash. Oct. 17, 2013) (finding that reasonable steps 12 were taken where the party “took steps in reviewing... documents that resulted in the documents 13 being identified as privileged... labeled the documents as privileged... [and] [i]t was only 14 through an administrative error that the documents were mistakenly filed.”). Even a cursory
15 review would have revealed the disclosure of portions of Mr. Leon’s Statement.

16 Mr. Leon waived any work product privilege over the portions of his Statement that were 17 quoted in the unredacted Letter and, accordingly, over the remainder of the Statement. See 18 Informatica Corp. v. Bus. Objects Data Integration, Inc., 454 F. Supp. 2d 957, 963 (N.D. Cal.
19 2006), aff’d, No. C 02-3378 JSW, 2006 WL 2329460 (N.D. Cal. Aug. 9, 2006) (“... [W]ork-20 product waiver only extends to “factual” or “non-opinion” work product concerning the same 21 subject matter as the disclosed work product.”).

22
24
25
26
27 ⁴ See Dkt. #45 at 10.

1 3. Plaintiff Has Substantial Need of the Letter

2 In the second alternative, even if it were found that Mr. Leon had not waived his work
3 product privilege, the Court would still find that the Statement is discoverable, as plaintiff has 4 demonstrated his substantial need of it.

5 Work product may be discoverable if it is otherwise discoverable under Federal Rule of 6 Civil Procedure 26(b)(1), and the party “shows that it has substantial need for the materials to 7 prepare its case and cannot, without undue hardship, obtain their substantial equivalent by other
8 means.” Fed. R. Civ. P. 26. The party seeking the work product has the burden of demonstrating 9 this substantial need, “as well as an inability to obtain the information from other sources
10 without undue hardship.” MKB Constructors v. Am. Zurich Ins. Co., No. C13-0611JLR, 2014
11 WL 12029371, at *6 (W.D. Wash. July 22, 2014).

12 Plaintiff has demonstrated substantial need of the Statement to prepare his case. In it, Mr.
13 Leon admitted to hitting Mr. Carnahan. See Dkt. #45-2 (“In your recorded statement you 14 explained that that [sic] “... we were playing video games. I’m not sure if it might have been 15 trash talk or something, I remember hitting Evan with a like a [sic] airsoft gun ...” “I hit him in 16 a playful manner.” “I thought I hit him on the top of the head. I’d say well above the forehead.”
17 ... CSAA understands that you did not mean to hurt Evan.”). Yet, when he was deposed on June 18 30, 2017, he specifically denied any recollection of the incident. Mr. Leon admitted that he 19 “remember[ed] the following day and for that week having interactions with people talking 20 about it.” But he maintained that he “[couldn’t] say like [he] remember[ed] it happening,” either 21 immediately after the incident or later on. He indicated that this was likely because he had been 22 drinking. See Dkt. #45-1 at 3-4. This is especially important given defense counsel’s attempts to 23 suggest that plaintiff fabricated this account, during plaintiff’s deposition on February 8, 2018.⁵
24

26 ⁵ See for e.g. Dkt. #45-6 at 2. (“Q... So are you telling me that you never fell and hit the left side
27 of your head against the step? A. Yes. Q. So that was a lie? A. That was. ... Q... [I]f you were lying to 28 your doctor at that time, why should a fact finder believe you now?”).

1 Mr. Leon argues in his response to the Motion that the Statement to CSAA is not inconsistent
2 with his deposition testimony. That is incorrect. Mr. Leon specifically denied any recollection of 3 hitting Mr. Carnahan with an airsoft gun at his deposition. See Dkt. #45-1 at 3-4. He specifically
4 admits to the very same recollection in the Statement. See Dkt. #45-2.

5 “Litigation is not a game. It is the time-honored method of seeking the truth, finding the 6 truth, and doing justice.” Haeger v. Goodyear Tire & Rubber Co., 869 F.3d 707, 710 (9th Cir.
7 2017). See Fed. R. Civ. P. 26, Advisory Committee Notes (“... [T]he spirit of the rules is 8 violated when advocates attempt to use discovery tools as tactical weapons rather than to expose
9 the facts and illuminate the issues...”); see United States v. Berberian, 767 F.2d 1324, 1328 (9th 10 Cir. 1985) (“[A]rriving at the truth is a fundamental goal of our legal system.”) (quoting from 11 United States v. Havens, 446 U.S. 620, 621 (1980)). The portions of Mr. Leon’s recorded 12 Statement reproduced in the Letter go to the very heart of this case. It does not seem likely that 13 plaintiff can obtain Mr. Leon’s recollection of hitting Mr. Carnahan in any other way. Mr. Leon 14 has already been deposed. He denied any memory of the incident. The Statement is therefore 15 discoverable. See for e.g. Myer v. Nitetrain Coach Co., No. C06-804C, 2007 WL 686357, at *1– 16 3 (W.D. Wash. Mar. 2, 2007) (“The videotape involves facts which may be essential elements of 17 Plaintiffs’ negligence claim. ... Because Plaintiffs have demonstrated that the videotape speaks 18 to an essential element of their claim and obtaining the same information from another source is 19 doubtful, they have demonstrated a substantial need for the videotape.”).

20
21 For the foregoing reasons, plaintiff’s motion is GRANTED. It is hereby ORDERED that 22 the unredacted Letter and Mr. Leon’s recorded Statement to CSAA are discoverable.

23 DATED this 6th day of November, 2018.
